

Research Question

Our research question is what is the optimal thickness for water-conducting materials to keep plants sufficiently watered?